free download Naked women protest 'unjust' arrest of Nudity on the beach More than 30 naked people protesting at the arrest of a man for being on a beach have been given police details of where they can go. Supporters of Dennis Heffernan, who was detained on Thursday by police while enjoying a nude dip in Corryvreckan, on the west coast of Scotland, say the case is 'unjust'. Mr Heffernan was arrested for breaching the Obscene Public Order Act in connection with an incident on the beach at North Sands in Stornoway. At 1am on Thursday morning, Mr Heffernan and other naturists went for a swim in the sea after a night out in the town. Inspector John Clapham of Stornoway Police, who attended the scene, told the Daily Telegraph that: "Mr Heffernan was found on the beach in the nude and was arrested for a breach of the Obscene Public Order Act." The Telegraph reported that they were later released and that there was no further action taken. The newspaper also reports that police were called on to release a woman who was also arrested in connection with the incident. The court shall afford the individual an opportunity to dispute the validity of the record and the propriety of the deprivation, and to request a hearing on this issue. *441 See, e. g., Menechino v. Oswald, 758 F.2d 1322 (2d Cir.1985); Miller v. Carson, 563 F.Supp. 965, 971-74 (M.D. Fla.1983). The procedures outlined in the state statute governing appeals from probation revocation hearings fully satisfy the requirements of the due process clause. The statute gives an individual the right to contest the record of the hearing and to challenge the factual basis for the revocation, the sufficiency of the evidence, and the procedures followed. The state law thus provides all the process that is due. The fact that the notice of the revocation hearing must include some indication of the alleged violations does not require a different conclusion. See, e. g., Draper v. Washington, 372 U.S. 487, 499, 83 S.Ct. 774, 782, 9 L.Ed.2d 899 (1963) (state rule of practice requiring notice of revocation hearing that "specifies the alleged violation or violations on which
